Tell your story with help from Bear

Hi there, I'm the Care Opinion Bear with a heart as big as the mountains!

I love listening to stories, because it brings us closer together. I am here to listen to what you have to say and lend you a helping paw!

Select the button below to begin sharing your story on Care Opinion.

Tell your story with help from Bear

Or you can also tell your story without Bear

Visit the Children and young people help page for more information.

Introduction and Story

What's your story?

Has someone helped you feel better when you were sick or needed care recently? Maybe a doctor, nurse, or someone special? I'm here to hear all about it!

Sharing your experience can help others feel brave and strong. It can make things better for everyone.

You can say why you needed to be looked after and where you had to go. You can say what you liked and what you did not like!

Please don't put your real name in your story. Ask a grown up to help if you are not sure.

What will happen to my story?

We will publish it on this site, if we can, so everyone can read it. Then we will tell the service about your story, and they might reply.

Don't worry: we never share your name or email with anyone.

I went to outpatients then I had to walk all the way back to main door which I found a struggle with unable to breath. Then I had an ECG and a heart scan. Next I made my way back to outpatients and saw Angie. She explained every thing to me in words I could understand which no one has before. I came out feeling a lot more confident about my health. Then I went for a chest x ray and blood test pick up my new prescription. Then I went home feeling a lot more positive. Over all a very good appointment.

Thank you very much for taking the time to feed back to us about your experience in ward A11. I'm delighted that you found your experience a mostly positive one and will ensure this information gets back to the ward team.

Care staff

I see that you were less impressed by the lack of things to do on the ward. This is a recurring theme I am seeing from our feedback and there are a few developing projects in ward A11 to try and keep our group from getting bored and fed up.

Things to do

There is an activities box in the ward and a seating areas at either end for staff and patients to use. I completely understand that time can pass quite slowly when you feel there is nothing to do.

Your feedback will help to make sure that the next group of patients coming through have a similarly positive experience.

Do you have your own children's character?

- After conducting a focus group with its young people, Midlands Partnership University NHS Foundation Trust have created their very own children character!
- This is a brilliant example of involving children & young people in decision making processes, allowing them to have their say/ input heard by staff and giving them the opportunity to have their ideas become a reality.
- The character will be used across MPFT's children and young people's services, with our development team here at Care Opinion looking expanding the functions available to allow services to incorporate their own characters into the tell your story workflow!

Framing the ask to children & parents

4 key elements to consider when asking for feedback

Possible reasons for why it might be hard asking for feedback:

- Feeling anxious about what people would say
- Not having the right words
- Not knowing when is the right time
- Not feeling like you have the time
- Feeling like you are bothering people

Possible reasons...

Fear of rejection

Not wanting to ask in case you upset someone or feel like they might not want to give feedback.
Feeling like it might be low down on their list of priorities.

Not understanding the importance of feedback

Show you are a listening organisation and that you use the feedback in a constructive way to learn from & improve services for others – explain why feedback is so important

Having confidence to ask

Asking for feedback is a skill, and will become easier the more you do it

People love to help!

Whatever the situation, the human brain is hard wired to be social, to cooperate, to assist where we can. Being helpful strengthens our sense of self and is a path to finding meaning, even in dark days. Children will often jump at the opportunity to give their opinion!

Ask for honesty

Encourage the people you ask for feedback to be helpful over nice. Let them know you are looking to get the most out of their time and their honesty is valued and appreciated.

Explain why feedback is important

Explaining to patients/service users that all feedback is important and that on Care Opinion they can say what was good as well as what could have been better – Balanced view

When to ask?

This will depend on your patients and the type of services you deliver.

- Think about how your service works and the pathway for a patient
- You can ask for feedback at anytime, and they have 3 years to give feedback about their experience.
- Before an appointment – “While you are waiting, we wanted to let you know you can feedback to us about your experience”
- During an appointment – “You can tell us what has been good or what could be improved anonymously using this link.”
- After an appointment – “Please tell us about your experience today”
- In communications e.g text messages per/post appointment/procedure.

Who to ask?

- Asking families/parents/carers
- Asking children using Bear
- Support from Volunteer/staff member

Remember, Care Opinion will only publish one story based on an incident of care....

Parents and children can combine their feedback into one story if needed.

Possible ways to 'Frame the ask' to parents and families...

"All the staff have been so lovely to my child...."

"Thank you, I know the team will really appreciate you saying that. We do have a way to share your kind words with everyone involved. Would you be happy to take a few minutes to write a few lines for them all?"

"I was so nervous but the care my child has received has been wonderful"

"I'm so glad it turned out better than you thought. We find many people are sometimes nervous about coming for their minor procedure. Would you be willing to share your experience with others via Care Opinion? This may help reassure other patients who may also feel nervous."

"Thank you for helping me get an appointment for my child today..."

"You're welcome, that's what I'm here for. I wonder if you would be willing to share your positive feedback on Care Opinion, I can send a link directly to your phone if that's ok?"

Possible ways to 'Frame the ask to children'...

"I've had a good time here...."

"That's lovely to hear. Would you like one of these Bear cards, and you can write your story to tell us more..."

"I was really scared but the stickers made me happy"

"It's good to hear you didn't feel as scared after you got your stickers. Your mum can help you tell your story here..."

"Thank you for looking after me today"

"You're welcome, I hope you feel better soon. Would you like to write a little about what happened today and how you felt?"

Teasing out the ‘what could be improved’...

“First class service
from first class
staff”

“ We left feeling relaxed
and valued”

The diagram consists of two magenta rounded rectangular boxes at the top, each containing a positive feedback quote. Two black curved arrows point from these boxes towards a central white speech bubble with a thick dark purple outline. The speech bubble contains a request for improvement, with the phrase 'one thing we could have done differently' in bold.

Stories told by children & young people

- Stories received by children & young people come in all different shapes and sizes, spanning across several services and specialties!
- Encouraging children to use their voice to share their opinion is so important, allowing them to advocate for what was good, what could be improved and how did they feel.
- This is as important for them as it is for you as service providers, providing you with the opportunity to go away, make changes and make informed decisions as a result from the input received by these authors.

Let's look at some examples to show this range!

" The hospital and staff were insanely efficient "

About: Royal Hospital for Children (Glasgow) / Plaster Room

 Posted by RAC14 (as the patient), last month

I went to the hospital at stobhill and I got an xray on my wrist, after I found out it was fractured.

Then I was referred to the royal hospital for children where I got a plaster cast on. It was slightly emotional but apart from that it was fun getting my first cast and it was euphoric when I got it back off and my arm got itched and cleaned.

Overall I absolutely loved the experience and the hospital and staff were insanely efficient and lovely to me on each visit. Both of which were under an hour each visit.

Hello RAC14,

Wow – what an amazing piece of feedback! It sounds like you handled everything like a pro, even when things got a bit emotional. Getting your first cast can definitely feel like a big moment, so I'm glad our team made it a positive experience for you.

I love that you described it as euphoric when the cast came off – that's such a great way to put it! Our staff will be thrilled to hear how much you appreciated their efficiency and kindness. We always aim to make visits as smooth and stress-free as possible, so hearing that both appointments were under an hour is fantastic.

Thank you for taking the time to share this – it really means a lot to us. Wishing you all the best as you get back to doing the things you love with your wrist fully healed! 🙌

" Staying in hospital "

About: University Hospital Hairmyres / Emergency Department

 Posted by mugwuffin (as a service user), 8 months ago

I fell over a slide and hurt myself really badly and I felt very scared because it was a new experience for me.

The nurses did a good job of looking after me, the food was great except for the hotdog (bun was dry).

The staff were good at explaining who they were and what they were doing, but sometimes they went through things a bit fast for me and I had to ask mum or dad what they meant after they left.

I found it really exhausting having to tell what had happened to me over and over again, we met lots of staff and they all wanted me to tell what had happened.

Response from Lise Axford, Chief of Nursing, University Hospital Hairmyres,
NHS Lanarkshire 8 months ago

Dear mugwuffin

Thank you for sharing your experience after you fell from a slide. It must have been scary for you and I am glad to read that the nurses did a good job of looking after you.

Sorry that you were given a dry bun with your hotdog. I will let the catering team know that otherwise the food was good, but a dry bun was certainly not!

You have told us that it was exhausting having to tell people over and over what happened to you and that sometimes staff went through things a bit too quickly. This information is really helpful to us and will be shared with the team. We can then all learn from this and try and improve for others.

Thank you again for your honesty as it is important to understand how it felt for you.

I hope that you are feeling better and making a good recovery.

Best wishes to you

Lise

Over to you...

Take a few minutes to note down some ideas to take forward – here are some pointers to help!

How do you currently promote Care Opinion in your service? Does it work, and if not, what could be improved?

What materials will you use to promote Bear? What would be eye-catching or appealing to your patients? Could you design your own materials? Could you create a Bear invitation link? Do you need help to do this from colleagues?

Who in your service will ask for Feedback? E.g. receptionists, play-workers, medical staff, volunteers.

Are you going to ask Parents or Children, or both for feedback? Think about the age, ability and resources of these people. Will they need support?

How will you share the feedback with your colleagues and the public? E.g. reports, visualisations, feedback boards, emails, newsletters, blogs, social media.
